School Report.

The study of physiology and hygiene, as required by a recent statute, has been successfully introduced into all the schools of our town the past year.

On recommendation of Prof. Patterson, Supt. of Public Instruction, and Dr. Watson, of the State Board of Health, the new work of Prof. Wm. T. Smith, M. D., of Dartmouth College, was finally adopted and must now remain as our text book for five years to come. Satisfactory examinations in this branch were passed in almost every school, though the methods of taking up the subject were varied, in some cases by making it a separate study, in others, by using the physiology as a reading book.

The experiment of brief written examinations in geography was tried by your committee, in the summer schools, with good results.

The use of Harper's geographies has been extended for the term of five years, the publishers having given their written agreement to furnish their books for our schools, during that time, at their special rates, viz., 35 cts. for the smaller geography and 80 cts. for the larger.

No other changes in text books have been made; though it is suggested, to future committee, that the present treatise in the written arithmetic is proving rather too difficult for our primary schools; and in the department of mental arithmetic, the new edition of time-honored Colburn's is heartily commended.

District No. 11. Owing to the illness of the teacher engaged for the summer term, the school was practically abandoned.

In Dist. No. 8, an unusual interruption was experienced by the employment and subsequent desertion of Mr. L. H. Metcalfe of the Tilton Seminary, during the first weeks of the fall term. Teachers have rights as well as pupils and parents, and the forming reputation of a young teacher, especially, should not be rudely trifled with. It is admitted that Mr. Metcalfe, this being his first engagement in a common school, failed to secure order during the first two weeks, but there is no evidence that he did not afterwards gain entire control of the school and that he was not progressing in a creditable manner during the next week. He certainly developed fine capabilities as an instructor.

Your committee, at his second visit, could see no good cause for dismissing him. This sould never have been done, unless some better reason for so doing had been made to appear. The patrons of the school, with one or two exceptions, neglected to visit it. But so great a prejudice had been engendered against Mr. Metcalfe that the very questionable proceeding of keeping all the pupils away from the school was resorted to, and he then thought it best to resign.

In one other school an unruly lad was suspended by the teacher, and no movements for his restoration were deemed advisable.

The Town History has been used as a text book, to a greater or less extent, in several of the schools.

Mr. Geo. A. Leavitt, prudential committee, in District No. 4, introduced the "Home Balance Roller," at a trifling expense, for utilizing and yet preserving the several wall maps in his school room. The same is recommended to the other districts. Their maps should be so kept as to be readily accessible and yet free from the liability of being prematurely torn or defaced.

With the exceptions noted above, the several terms of your schools have proceeded with their usual quiet, and in most cases with encouraging progress. In glancing at the districts the names of such teachers, only, will be given as have officiated, continuously, through one or more full terms.

The winning ways and patient efforts of Miss Emilie J. Hersey secured to Dist. No. 1, through three terms, (the last short) even greater success than crowned her labors last year, in the same district. Elementary drawing a specialty.

In District No. 2, 1st term, Miss Laura F. Philbrook, of Holliston, Mass. This was her first school; and, though lacking that co-operation which she should have enjoyed from some of the parents, she yet disclosed sterling qualities as a teacher. Miss Carrie A. Smith of Laconia, brought to her work, during the long second term, tact, experience and unbounded enthusiasm, together with many of the new methods of the Normal School; like the "moulding board" for elementary Geography and a new way of seating the pupils which might prove mischievous with some schools and teachers, but worked admirably in this case. One of our very best schools.

Miss Carlie S. Sanborn of Tilton, taught the two terms in Dist. No. 3, with thorough work and good progress, especially on the part of the younger pupils. Closing declamations of a high order.

Miss Helen F. Rollins of Tilton, officiated the first term in Dist. No. 4, the school being the largest in town, and somewhat difficult to manage. Yet the good will of the pupils was happily secured, as also their evident improvement.

Miss Minnie M. Perley of Laconia, during the second term, also adopted some of the "Normal" methods, to which the pupils and parents take less kindly than in some other districts. There was much in this school to approve; noticeably, a report of each months' advancement in the several studies, carefully drawn out in a written form.

Nothing can be abated from the good reputation won during former years by our veteran teacher, Mrs. Cynthia A. Hill, in Dist. No. 5. This school, both terms, showed signs of solid work without any flourish of trumpets. Specimens of the most advanced scholarship of any school in town.

Great improvement was made by the scholars in Dist. No. 6, considering the shortness of the terms, under the skillful leadership of Miss Sarah M. Frye of New Hampton. Schoolhouse most tastefully trimmed of any seen in town at close of the summer term; but the blackboard, virtually useless.

In Dist. No. 7, Mrs. Ida L. Tilton followed up her labors of the previous year with diligence and fidelity, showing us marked cases of excellence in mental arithmetic, spelling and definitions among her smaller pupils, and good explanations in the higher arithmetic on the part of the older.

No scholars in town can behave better than those in Dist. No. 8, and they evidently tried to do so under their teacher, during the first term, Miss Dora Mason, who labored faithfully for their profit, with a fine closing examination.

Miss Melissa T. Virgin of Concord, a teacher of rare qualities and experience, also trained the pupils through her term with care and thoroughness, and with quite as marked progress as could have been expected, all circumstances considered.

Miss N. G. Tilton was also treading on ground familiarized by her last year's labors, as she carried the arithmetic classes of Dist. No. 9, over the theory and practice of that science, with clear and well put explanations of principles, especially of the square and cube roots. Her pupils likewise gave us blackboard illustrations in physiology, and a grand exhibition of calisthenics such as we would be glad to see introduced into all our schools.

The school in District No. 10 has taken a new lease of life by the moving in of at least one large family. Miss Blanche H. Knox taught during the first term, and Miss A. M. Knox, the second—the latter another of our veteran teachers. Both acquitted themselves well, their pupils showing observable proficiency in geography, grammar and physiology. The final examination of the second term was the best your present committee has ever witnessed in that school-house.

Miss Bertha O. Cawley, of Hill, made her first trial as a teacher, during the second and principal term in District No. 11, succeeding finely. The committee having taught the school himself one whole day, the first of the summer, was enabled to bear witness to the improvement of the pupils.

In District No. 12, Mrs. Laura E. Wallace, during the two terms, labored most assiduously for the somewhat diminished numbers of the school, being permitted to remark a large accession of new ideas and greater facility of expressing them on the part of their scholars. The moral influence exerted upon this school by scriptural recitations can not be over-estimated; while the most charming piece ever listened to by the writer from a little boy only five years old, in the schools of Sanbornton, was the crowning pleasure of his closing visit.

District No. 13 rejoiced in the labors, through the school year, of one of the most able and experienced teachers we have ever met in this town, the Rev. M. Proctor Favor. Especially have we never seen the art of reading and the rudiments of geography so satisfactorily taught. We fear that some of the people in the district failed to appreciate their school privileges the past year.

Lastly, the two Sanbornton pupils of District No. 16, with as many accessories from Hill and with other recruits near the close of the school, from District No. 10, were marshaled in half-day sessions, under the skilled tuition of Mr. Frank E. Adams, of Hill.
